

Salm Global Land is an independent asset manager headquartered in Wallhausen, with additional locations in Atlanta (USA) and Waverley (New Zealand). For generations, the Salm-Salm family has owned land and benefited from its yields and returns. On this foundation, we acquire and manage land for our clients. In doing so, we place particular emphasis on the protection of ownership and on responsibility toward people and nature.

In the field of land and forestry asset management, we offer interested candidates the opportunity to complete an internship (8 – 12 weeks).

We offer a varied internship with a wide range of tasks:

In addition to research tasks and the preparation of meetings, you will be responsible for creating and translating presentations. Furthermore, you will support us with ongoing projects and take on general administrative duties.

This is what you can look forward to:

With us, you can think outside the box. You will become part of a professional, dynamic team and gain insights into international projects in the field of agriculture and forestry. We give you the opportunity to work independently and autonomously on projects that you accompany from start to finish.

If this appeals to you, we look forward to receiving your application!
